Dear Law Librarian:

Sources for information collected by the federal government on private citizens is documented in FROM INSIDE THE CIA: FEDERAL INVESTIGATORS MANUAL. Originally compiled by a CIA employee, under a Brookings Institution Executive Fellowship, this landmark manual unearths the data-collecting activities of each department in the federal government.

You, and the users of your collection, will find this directory an invaluable reference source. You will use it to search for new data resources as well as to provide a perspective on the issues of security and privacy with which we are all vitally concerned.

Please use the order form to ensure delivery immediately upon publication this spring.

Very truly yours,

Ivan Lyons
